Begging the question is a logical fallacy that occurs when an argument's premises assume the truth of the conclusion, instead of supporting it. It is a type of circular reasoning and an informal fallacy: an argument that requires that the desired conclusion be true. This often occurs in an indirect way such that the fallacy's presence is hidden, or at least not easily apparent.

I have written about critical thinking before but despite 'thinking' I had improved in this skill, I still find myself being accused of failing as a critical thinker, of building straw man arguments and falling foul of other logical fallacies when I critique stuff, usually by manual therapists, and usually about manual therapy. I know!
